Parents should be aiming to continue their child's education while schools are closed. How can your school support them to create an effective home learning environment? Here we share some advice from our Education Specialists about what an effective home learning environment could look like. You could share this with your parents as a guide.

Advice for Teaching at Home

1. Set up a daily schedule that shows all the activities planned for the day including lessons, lunch and brain breaks.

2. Do math's and language learning – including reading and writing.

3. Do creative activities such as drawing, designing and making.

4. Make time to be active. Dance and play games such as hide and seek (tepo), nyama nyama, board games and skipping.

5. Use checklists as children enjoying ticking off what they have completed.

6. Praise children for meeting learning objectives. Reward extra play time or fewer house chores.
